

Lowell Palmer

2007 Inductee

A ~100 mph fastball propelled Lowell into professional baseball as a 19 year old. His professional career lasted 11 years where he played for 10 organizations, with major league stops with the Phillies, Cardinals, Indians, and Padres. Lowell attended the first league meeting and served as a manager/Board member. His teams won 5 League championships and 3 World Series championships. He was known as a power pitcher and power hitter, and could instill fear into the opposition. Willie Mays once refused to bat against Lowell.